

HUNTING The ENGLISH SIX

England has a long and illustrious history of protecting indigenous and introduced game animals in the wild and on estates. Sightseeing tours are important and interesting asides to the hunting adventure.

Southeast England

In early winter, join Ken Wilson and family as they tour London and beautiful southeast England before Ken hunts Red Stag, Chinese Water Deer, Manchurian/Formosan Sika, and Fallow Deer with James Ellis and Derek Bond. Then, in late summer, join Lad Shunneson as he hunts the two most prolific deer species in England, the introduced Reeves Muntjac with James Ellis and the indigenous Roe Buck with Richard Bond.

Elderton Lodge

All travel and hunting was arranged by Derek Bond of Bond-Balmaghie.

SIX
